Blue - he does not like to be left alone and is vocal when he is separated from the group.

But he calms right down when he's being held.

Nervous to start, but feels comfortable being close to people.

Once positive interaction and toys were introduced he became very playful and confident. He was happy to engage.

He really found that he has a fondness for toys and they were a good tool to redirect him or get his attention.

He is very silly in his play and attempts to get your attention. Joyful puppy. Can be a little pushy with his siblings when he's wanting them to play and they're not interested.

Moderate energy level.

Green - nervous to start. He would hide behind tester or get in her lap until he felt comfortable enough to venture away.

Once he was comfortable enough to play, he still preferred people over toys or engaging with his siblings. He's motivated by one on one attention. Great with handling and didn't mind being a lap baby.

Mid-level energy. He will establish a strong bond very easily and quickly.

Possible emotional support candidate. No red flags.

Orange - A little shy but confident enough to walk around and check out the new environment.

He's a very sweet and mannerly puppy.

He maintains a mid-level energy. Very sweet and respectful. Not needy or vocal.

He is self-assured and easy to be around.

He doesn't require a lot of attention and respect boundaries. No red flags.
