Carley Girls Temperament Overview:

The Carley litter is overall confident and self-assured. These puppies show no signs of stress in new situations, around unfamiliar people, or in environments typically considered stressful. They react appropriately to new sights and sounds, including those that may be considered startling, and approach the world with curiosity and an investigative spirit.

At this stage of development, the puppies display age-appropriate memory, focus, and problem-solving abilities. They have balanced motivation for interaction, food, and toys, showing equal interest across all three. Socially, they are appropriate in their interactions with one another, with cats, and with other dogs. They also engage respectfully and appropriately with people.

These puppies rarely use their mouths to initiate or engage in play, and when they do, their bite inhibition is excellent. They are rarely vocal, and no red flags or signs of possessiveness were observed. The litter is very consistent overall, with only subtle differences between each individual.
