Charity Girls Temperament Overview:

The Charity litter is overall confident and self-assured. They show no signs of stress in new situations, around unfamiliar people, or in circumstances typically considered stressful. These puppies are naturally curious and investigative, even with sights and sounds that would normally be considered startling. They demonstrate excellent memory, focus, and problem-solving abilities—well above average for their age and stage of development. Their motivation for interaction and food is strong, and they show a good interest in toys as well.

Socially, these puppies are very appropriate in their interactions—with one another, with cats, with other dogs, and with people. They are eager to engage and are consistently happy and interactive. Most of them actively seek out handling and restraint, showing comfort and tolerance in those moments. They rarely use their mouths to initiate or engage in play, and when they do, they display excellent bite inhibition. They are also rarely vocal. There are no red flags in this litter, and they show no signs of possessiveness.
