Rosie Girls Temperament Overview:

The Rosie litter is overall very confident and self-assured. They show little to no stress in new situations or around new people, even in circumstances typically considered stressful. These puppies react appropriately to new sights and sounds, including those that might be considered startling. They have excellent motivation for interaction, as well as good motivation for toys and food. Overall, they demonstrate very good focus, memory, and problem-solving abilities, above average for their age and stage of development.

These puppies are socially appropriate in their interactions with one another, with cats, and with other dogs. They are also socially appropriate in their interactions with people. They rarely use their mouths to initiate or engage in play, unless otherwise noted, and they have excellent bite inhibition when they do. These puppies show no red flags and exhibit no signs of possessiveness. They are all comfortable with and tolerant of handling and restraint. They are fairly consistent in temperament, and all of them have potential for therapy work
