Clementine Litter Temperament Overview:

The Clementine litter is confident and self-assured, showing little to no stress in new situations, whether around new people or in circumstances that might typically be considered stressful. They react appropriately to new sights and sounds with curiosity and investigative behavior.

Socially, these puppies are very appropriate in their interactions with one another, as well as with cats, dogs, and people. They may use their mouths to initiate or engage in play, but they display excellent bite inhibition. They are rarely vocal, show no possessiveness, and have no red flags. All are comfortable with and tolerant of handling and restraint, often seeking out this type of interaction.

As a group, the Clementine puppies are consistent and well-balanced, with only slight individual differences. They are social, playful, eager, and happy, making them adaptable to most any home environment.
