Coralee Litter Temperament Overview:

The Coralee litter overall is timid and needs extra time to adjust in new situations. They may show some stress when meeting new people or in circumstances typically considered stressful, but they remain curious and investigative. While they do startle at times, they recover quickly on their own.

These puppies have good memory, focus, and problem-solving abilities that are average for their age and stage of development. They show good motivation for interaction, food, and toys, and their energy levels and motivation will continue to improve as their confidence grows. Socially, they are appropriate in their interactions with one another, with cats, and with other dogs. They are also appropriate and gentle in their interactions with people. They rarely use their mouths and demonstrate excellent bite inhibition.

By nature, these puppies are very gentle, rarely vocal, and comfortable with handling and restraint. They will do best in homes that allow them to adjust to new things without being overwhelmed. Each positive interaction and socialization opportunity will help them build confidence for the next new situation. Their overall nature lends itself to being respectful, tender-hearted, and sweet.
