Lemon Litter Temperament Overview:

The Lemon litter is very confident and self-assured, showing no stress in new situations, whether around new people or in circumstances that could typically be considered stressful. They are curious and investigative with new sights and sounds, even those that might typically be considered startling. Their memory, focus, and problem-solving abilities are average for their age and stage of development, and they display excellent motivation for interaction, food, and toys.

These puppies are socially appropriate in their interactions with one another, as well as with cats, dogs, and people. While they may vocalize at times to get or keep attention, this behavior is easily redirected and remains socially appropriate. They may also use their mouths to initiate or engage in play, but they have excellent bite inhibition. None of the puppies show possessiveness or red flags, and they are all very comfortable with and tolerant of handling and restraint.

Overall, this litter is eager, happy, and well balanced. They are up for just about anything and have excellent potential for therapy work. They should adapt well into most any home environment.
