Rosemary Litter Temperament Overview:

The Rosemary litter is confident, self-assured, and shows little to no stress in new situations, whether meeting new people or encountering circumstances that could typically be considered stressful. These puppies are curious and investigative when introduced to new sights and sounds, even those that may be startling. They demonstrate excellent memory, focus, and problem-solving abilities—above average for their age and stage of development.

They are strongly motivated by interaction, food, and toys, and are socially appropriate in their interactions with one another, with cats, other dogs, and people. They rarely use their mouths to initiate play, and when they do, they show excellent bite inhibition. The Rosemary puppies are rarely vocal, with no red flags or possessiveness noted. They are comfortable and tolerant of handling and restraint, and most actively seek out this type of interaction. Overall, they present as well-balanced, easy-going, and adaptable, making them a wonderful fit for a wide range of homes.
