Litter Temperament Overview:

The Esther litter is a well-balanced and consistent group of puppies, all displaying mid-level energy. They are confident, social, and playful, with only slight variations between individuals. Each puppy is curious and investigative, quickly adapting to new sights and sounds—even those that could typically be considered startling. They recover easily and show confidence once comfortable.

Socially, they interact beautifully with one another, with cats, other dogs, and people. They are affectionate, friendly, and eager to please, making them ideal companions. Though they use their mouths a bit during play, their bite inhibition is excellent, and they are rarely vocal. They tolerate handling and restraint very well, often enjoying affection and attention.

These puppies show excellent motivation for food, toys, and interaction, which pairs well with their good memory, focus, and problem-solving skills for their developmental stage. Overall, this litter leaves a strong impression of being happy, bubbly, and intelligent—an affectionate group that would make wonderful family companions and, for some, potential emotional support or therapy dogs.
