Gabby Litter Temperament Overview:

The Gabby litter is confident and self-assured overall, though a bit timid to start. They may take a moment to adjust in new situations but recover well when given time and space to do so. These puppies are curious and investigative with new sights and sounds, including those that might typically be considered startling. If they do startle, they recover quickly and appropriately on their own. Their memory, focus, and problem-solving abilities are average for their age and stage of development.

They show very good motivation for interaction and good motivation for food and toys. Socially, they are appropriate in their interactions with one another, with cats, and with other dogs. They are gentle and respectful in their interactions with people, rarely using their mouths to initiate play and demonstrating excellent bite inhibition when they do. None of the puppies show red flags or possessiveness, and they are rarely vocal.

Overall, the Gabby litter is gentle, balanced, and sweet. While they may need a little extra time to adjust to new environments, they respond beautifully once comfortable. These puppies will thrive in calm, patient homes that allow them the space and reassurance to build confidence through positive experiences.
